ARTILLERY

Artillery, in official opinion, now rates top priority in preparations for the assault on German-held Europe. Experience has revealed its prime importance. Many laymen trying to follow military planning, with reference to weapons, have guessed at various times during the war that artillery eventually would do what it did in World War I—drive land forces underground. That, too, is now official opinion. The war department has released a statement on the Anzio beachhead containing this observation by Maj. George Artman, an infantry commander: "The Allies have had to dig themselves in the way they did in the first World War, with deep holes and overhead cover."

This war's slit trench, for protection from bomb fragments, is the counterpart of the other war's continuous trench. Artillery is bringing back the dugout. The Maginot line and all subsequent and similar defense works were based on the principle of underground security. The bomb shelter, in its various forms, is merely the application to civilian security of the military principle of digging in for protection. While there may never be the stalemate that produced the intricate trench-dugout systems on the western front by 1918, the possibility of trench warfare is stronger now than it has been at any stage of the "war of movement" which all wars start out to be.

The forthcoming invasion, if it is not to be a vastly larger Anzio beachhead, with the attacking force pinned down by defending guns, have to fall back on the lessons learned in World War I and apparently put into practice by Russia in World War II—that there is no substitute in attack for the cover of massed artillery. The war department apparently intends to reassure the public that artillery will not be slighted.

VOTING INTEREST INDEX

Chief concern of practical politicians in the national election this year is with the change wrought in the electorate by the wholesale shifting of voters out of their home communities. When it is further considered that among those who have "stayed put," as well as among the men and women who have gone into military service or moved to new communities, there are signs of lagging political interest, practical politicians see the possibility of a national election in which past performances will mean little or nothing because of drastically altered circumstances.

As an index of voting interest, registration for the Ohio primary confirms this expectation. When communities which have added population have smaller registrations than they had in 1940, it means that unless a miracle brings the total of qualified voters into balance before November the national total of votes will be far below that of 1940, when 49,815,312 ballots were cast for presidential candidates. The shortage, moreover, would not be due entirely to subtraction of military voters.

While it seems to be official Democratic credo that the situation would favor the Republican party, if large numbers of voters defaulted next November, the promise that one party has an option on the majority of backsliding and indifferent voters seems dubious. At least, it puts the Democrats in the awkward position of claiming that most voters who aren't interested enough in representative democracy to take the trouble to vote must be, therefore, Democrats.

AMEN TO ADM. NIMITZ

It is impossible to think offhand of anyone better qualified to talk about the toughness of young Americans than Adm. Nimitz. His comment in a speech in Hawaii that the present crop has as much muscle and maybe a little more brains than their predecessors deserves an amen from just about every corner of the earth.

There are young Americans who are mollycoddles, but they are not peculiar to this generation. They have appeared in every generation. They are offset by all the young Americans everywhere who have been exploded out of civilian environments into the heavy responsibilities and bitter trials of a fight for survival and are more than holding up their end.

Perhaps, on an average, there are no more of them than there were in any previous trial of national strength. But anyone who cares to argue that there are fewer had better come to his task armed with statistics to explain away the things they are doing in the air, on the oceans and on the land. That was the mistake the German and Japanese plotters made—to believe that the young men of the United States, when put to the test, would turn out to be mollycoddles, lacking the wherewithal to sustain themselves against the sword-rattling young men of Germany and Japan.

THE STARS SAY:

For Friday, April 14

CONFLICTING astral conditions are noted in this day's forecast, beset with many contradictions, reversals and subtleties. There are signs of sinister intrigues and undercover attacks, which may be ruthlessly and passionately dragged into the open, with disastrous and regrettable consequences. While business and finance may be side issues, it is probable that affectional, domestic, social or romantic affiliations may be most disturbed and seriously concerned. While these sinister undercurrents may be cleverly manipulated there may be subsequent joys or accomplishments affecting the inner life and its aspirations.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of conflicting and distressing circumstances, yet with prudence, sagacity and exceptional grasp of subtle and sinister situations there may eventually be a happy and gratifying culmination, restoring peace of mind, and all inner or emotional satisfactions. Although business and financial affairs are under signs of intrigue, fraud and duplicity, yet the personal life seems particularly stressed. Love affairs, domestic, social or artistic associations may be involved, or inner spiritual values may be disturbed. With firm discipline of impulses and emotions there may be benefits.

A child born on this day while tempestuous and impulsive, with many vagaries or subtleties, yet may have an artistic, romantic and spiritual nature.

All-Out Airpower

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The advocates of all-out airpower as a means of defeating the enemy aren't making much noise these days and for good reason—the war has disproved their contentions on several fronts.

Gen. Ira Eaker's recent statement that the air armadas over Cassino and the Anzio beachhead accomplished all they were expected to, put the final fillip on the dream of knocking enemies out of the war by bombing alone.

Amid war secrecy, strategists here have been working along these lines for months, but not without some argument from those who still held that blockbusters would win the war.

As I wrote some weeks ago, Tarawa got the worst drubbing of any square mile of land subjected to air attack up to that time. Yet the Marines ho landed there fought the greatest battle and suffered the greatest percentage of casualties in their long history.

At Cassino, an even greater air bombardment was laid down, yet the enemy clung to that stronghold and the Allied forces were stalled. There never was any question of our air supremacy over the Anzio beach-head, yet that effort to flank the enemy still is abortive.

In spite of overwhelming superiority in the air on the entire Italian front, we never were able to prevent the Nazis from bringing up sufficient supplies and reinforcements to stop the Allied advance.

Not long ago, the War department issued a statement on the bombing of Germany. It was remarkable for two reasons. It made no claims whatever that we are knocking Germany out of the war by bomb runs over vital war industries. It did emphasize that our own air force and the RAF are making great gains in destruction of Nazi fighter plane strength, both by planes shot down in the air and by the interruption of production of factories on the ground.

That's pretty mild, in view of opinions of airpower advocates a year or so ago that merely blanketing cities with bombs would cause our enemies to yell uncle.

The airpower advocates overplayed their hand and it is well they did. If they hadn't we wouldn't have the air force we have today. The mossbacks in the Army and Navy wanted to go on fighting as World War I was fought.

The danger is that failure of those claims to stand up, may let both public and the strategists again drop into the fault of underestimating airpower. Without it, no army can win, but it's apparent now that the army must be there in a force sufficient to defeat the enemy on the ground.

If there is any doubt that the strategists have come to that conclusion, it may be dispelled by the fact that it's no secret now that for months the War Production Board has given top priority in materials and labor to landing craft.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Prescription For Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
"THERE ARE three good doctors who have not gone to war," observes my comforting old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs. "They were praised by that ancient worthy, Dr."

Dr. Clendinging will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

John Harrington, in his book "The Englishman's Doctor," as long ago as 1650 and they still practice successfully.

"Use three physicians still: first Dr. Quiet, then Dr. Merryman and lastly, Dr. Diet."

There is a great deal of sound common sense in that. Going to bed is Dr. Quiet's prescription, and there is nothing known to me in the realm of pathology which would not be benefited by going to bed. Another old friend of mine and one of the great newspaper women of our generation, Laura Nelson, said to me once—"I verily believe that if everyone would spend their entire life in bed, no one would ever die." She was never, it is true, one of your strenuous women, all covered with fleck and foam, slapping her crop against her head and delighting in taking France over an eight-foot fence, so her remark may have been a personal equation. But nobody so far as I know has ever disproved it.

Importance of Rest

Certain it is that going to bed is what the doctor will order if you can get him, as at least part of the cure for nearly any acute malady even in these days of magic sulfa drugs and magic molds and magic chlorophylls and magic vitamins. Dr. Merryman should be cultivated. I happened to write, a week or so ago, on the subject of gas—in the belly—gas on the stomach—and I mentioned the sense of comfort and happiness that results from a good belch. But there are some who could derive help from Dr. Merryman; for these the burp they do not like it. It seems fraught with sinister implications—fermentations of the food, unnatural chemistry of the fundaments. Hamlet's saying that—"there is nothing good" and no emergency exists as to chronic ailments. About the only common acute diseases that require emergency medical attention in adults are pneumonia and appendicitis. You will know those because one is heat in the chest and the other is heat in the abdomen. And, of course, accidents—burns, fractures, dislocations—are emergencies. The United States Public Health Service is allowed by law to pay a doctor's or dentist's moving expenses into a new community, plus an allowance of $250.00 a month for the first three months of residence. He in turn must agree to practice a year in his new location. To get him there the community must file a formal application OK'd by its own State Health Department, then agree to repay one-quarter of the money to the Health Service.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendinging has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendinging, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetics," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

As for Dr. Diet, why he is half of all my advice. If you are in health and would keep in health take a glass of milk, an egg, some bread and butter, a vegetable, and a fruit every day as basic requirements and let your taste dictate the rest—meat, potatoes, salad, fish, pie, ice cream, coffee or tea—not too much if you weigh 180, a little more than you want if you are under 115, and as your taste and fancy dictates if you weigh 150. No matter what your height or age.

Invalids' Diet

For the invalids' diet, it should be nourishing and should have salt and fluid and proteins. And during convalescence something solid. I subscribe to the blast of Dr. Martin Fischer, about the "popular conception of a strengthening diet is a chicken wrung out of hot water."

Of course we need doctors and this is no invitation to limitless self-treatment. Babies and children need doctors on nearly any provocation and in a hurry. Adults can usually be more leisurely about it. The adult ailments are mostly chronic

THE RED CARNATION by BURTON STEVENSON

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Dr. Metcalf was lying back in his chair, his eyes closed. There was a little hole in his right temple from which blood had oozed and clotted. The right hand hung down over the arm of the chair and beneath it on the floor lay a small automatic with a carved ivory stock. Near the pistol was an empty shell.

Duffy took one glance at all this, caught up the desk phone by one end, dialed Headquarters and barked in an order. Then he put the phone carefully back in its cradle and looked around.

The door opening into the outer office was half open and he could see that the room was dark. He slipped past the door without touching it, switched on the lights and examined the outer door. It was locked by the automatic catch. He threw off the catch, opened the door, tied his handkerchief carefully over the knob, and came back into the inner office.

Tony was standing there by the desk, gazing down at something. This is interesting," he said, and motioned Duffy to look.

Beside the dead man, secured to a folding shelf of the desk, was a typewriter, a number six Underwood. In the carriage was a sheet of paper evidently torn from a pad on the desk, and on the paper was written with a black ribbon in elite type:

Jack McKibben deserved all he got, but the police, I suppose, would call it murder, and I have decided that this is the easiest way out.

Silently Tony pointed to the "g" in "got". It had a nick across the tail.

"I guess that settles it," said the detective.

Duffy's call to Headquarters had set the police wheels whirling. Within a minute the alarm was on the radio and the two cars nearest the scene were speeding toward Central Park West.

"I guess that settles it," the detective had said, and almost before the words were out of his mouth the radio men were there. Then came the precinct captain and two policemen, then two detectives from the homicide squad together with a stenographer, then the photographer and the fingerprint man together, then the medical examiner—the routine set-up for a homicide case.

"Died instantly," said the examiner, after a look at the body. "Been dead between two and three hours. Shot with a small-calibre pistol—a .25 probably—held almost against the right temple. Bullet still in the head somewhere. Send the body over to the mortuary and I'll get it out for you."

The fingerprint man was soon ready to announce his discoveries. Metcalf's prints were on the ivory stock of the automatic, on the keys of the typewriter, on the sheet of paper in the carriage, on the drawer of the desk, the telephone, and the knob of the door leading up to his living rooms. His prints were also on the door into the outer office and the one into the hall, as well as those of another person, probably a woman.

"His secretary," suggested Tony. Her prints were also on the desk and the typewriter in the outer room. There was a medley of prints on the arms of the chair in front of the doctor's desk where his patients usually sat, and Tony reflected that his own were no doubt among them.

"Let's see what is back here," said Duffy, and opened a door in the wall at the rear of the desk. The room beyond was in darkness, and he switched on the light.

It was a large chamber and the light which illumined it from some concealed source was an eerie blue which threw queer shadows across their faces. It was bare of furniture except for one chair, a cabinet of polished wood at one side of the door, a small night table, and a low couch in the middle of the floor—an extraordinary couch, at least eight feet square, without headboard or footboard. The single chair stood at its head, and the table at its side.

Along the wall opposite the door stretched a steel cabinet with four heavy doors. Duffy tried one of them and found it locked. There was a door in the other wall opening into a closet in which half a dozen surgeon's white gowns were hanging. On a shelf was a pile of sheets.

"See what you can find," said Duffy, and the fingerprint man went to work. "Look at that couch. And these blue lights."

They're supposed to be soothing," said Tony. "I wonder what these other switches are for?"

There were six switches on the wall beside the door, and Tony turned them on, one after another. There were green, red, yellow, and purple lights. Duffy stood and watched him.

"It isn't altogether a fake," Tony remarked. "Color does have a very definite effect on the nerves—and an arrangement like this also impresses the patient. He thinks he's getting his money's worth."

"He?" snapped the detective. "No he's ever came into this den of iniquity."

"We know one who did: Professor Terry."

"It may be all right," Duffy growled, "but I can tell you one thing—I'd never let any woman of mine come into this place. I'd be afraid she'd get altogether too relaxed. What is it, Schultz?"

No prints here except Metcalf's and the same dame's we found outside," the fingerprint man reported.

"Okay," Duffy nodded. "I want you to be here tomorrow morning when his secretary blows in and get her prints—say eight-thirty. I'll be and initiated by the detective, and turned over to the captain.

Schultz, meanwhile, had been proceeding with the nitrate test, and Tony watched him closely. In a minute or so Schultz picked up the paraffin mold, held it under the light and looked into it. "There you are, chief," he said, and pointed to a sprinkling of dark blue specks on the inside of the mold. "There's your nitrate. He fired the pistol all right."

"I was sure of it," said Duffy. "I hope that sets your mind at rest, Tony."

The columnist took the mold for a minute and looked at it. His mind was by no means at rest, but there could be no mistaking those dark blue specks.

"That seems to settle it," he agreed.

While Schultz was getting his paraffin melted over a little electric heater which he plugged into an outlet near the door, Duffy went carefully through the dead man's pockets, the precinct captain listing the various articles as the detective drew them forth and laid them on the desk. There was a billfold with sixty dollars in five- and ten-dollar bills, a dollar or two in loose change, a fountain pen, a pencil, a bunch of keys, a penknife, a handkerchief. In one of the vest pockets was a single small Yale lock key, and in another a thin gold watch.

"I'll keep the keys," said Duffy, and dropped them into his pocket. The other articles were sealed up in a heavy manila envelope, docketed and initialed by the detective, and turned over to the captain.

Schultz, meanwhile, had been proceeding with the nitrate test, and Tony watched him closely. In a minute or so Schultz picked up the paraffin mold, held it under the light and looked into it. "There you are, chief," he said, and pointed to a sprinkling of dark blue specks on the inside of the mold. "There's your nitrate. He fired the pistol all right."

"I was sure of it," said Duffy. "I hope that sets your mind at rest, Tony."

The columnist took the mold for a minute and looked at it. His mind was by no means at rest, but there could be no mistaking those dark blue specks.

"That seems to settle it," he agreed.

Duffy turned to the precinct captain. "I guess we're through with the body, Jerry," he directed. "You can send it over to the mortuary. I wish you would leave a man on the door here and keep two down in the lobby till I send for them. I'll come around to the station as soon as I've looked things over here."

"All right, Jim, I'll wait for you," said the captain, and called the stretcher-bearers in from the outer room. In a moment the body was covered with a sheet and borne away.

"You're not looking very happy," Duffy remarked.

"I can't understand why he should kill himself."

"We'll find out why, I'm going to see the hotel people first. Then we can take out time in here."

WAC's Ego Hurt By Male KPs Giving Them Instructions

By RUTH COWAN

WITH THE WACS IN BRITAIN

For the WACS it's a blow—where a blow hurts. It was found necessary to send in some KP's (male) to shine up the kitchen of the WACS mess in London. The girl soldier cooks got a bad mark on kitchen inspection.

A sergeant (male) told of it with a chuckle. The WACS see the humor of it, but feel they've been pitched a foul ball.

WACS are set up to be self-sufficient. They have their own cooks and bakers. The enlisted personnel take turns doing the dishes.

The WACS formerly had civilian helpers—as do many male outfits, even Marines—to "police up." But the story is that a lieutenant general (male) had the civilian employees withdrawn.

Women, he believed, should do their own work. That was okay with the WACS except for the complications.

For one thing, there is a rule that no WAC above the grade of corporal can do KP. And the WACS in the London detachment are getting up in the non-commissioned world.

Women's Work Never Done

Also, some of the "brass" won't release WAC privates working in their offices when their time comes for KP. "They think the WAC privates working for them are too good to do the dishes," commented one girl soldier.

Also the mess sergeant, Constance Delahoyde of Bath, N. Y., has been ill in the hospital. Three cooks have been off sick.

One cook badly injured her hand. It seems men soldiers in supplies had been a little slow in handing out that essential kitchen item, the can-opener.

The girls have been having to use butcher knives and meat cleavers to open those big cans in which army chow comes.

And just now comes a report that another cook fell and injured her back.

The WAC privates are very sorry it was found necessary to send a male clean-up detail into their kitchen, but after all it's the same old story.

Even in the Army, it seems, women's work is never done.

Moscow Brightens Its Entertainment For Folks At Home

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, April 13.—Life is going to be brighter for the Russians on the home front these coming weeks.

Commencing this Saturday and Sunday, from midnight until 2 a. m., the nation's best artists will go before the microphone in elaborate concerts which will be relayed through the streets, factories, buildings and apartments.

It is a definite new emphasis on making life nicer—entertaining—for the folks behind the front.

And what talent! Saturday night's programs included the Bolshoi theater artists in Rimski Korsakov's "Tsar's Bride," with the theater orchestra in the overture and accompanying the presentation.

Russia's great bass singer, Mikhail Mikhailov, and the country's leading soprano, Valerie Barsova, are taking the leading roles.

Weekends Are Similar
The weekend in the Soviet union is about the same as it is in the United States or Great Britain. Most, but not all, the stores close Sundays and it generally is considered a free day for the majority of the people. Saturday and Sunday are the days when theaters are the most crowded, movies are jammed, and when subway, street-car and bus traffic is heaviest. Saturday night, as it is in most places of the world, is a night of merry-making—the week's labor concluded and a day of rest and relaxation coming up.

Russians, who are beginning to get a little more of things that brighten up life, are going in big for Saturday night celebrations.

The war is swinging rapidly away from the home front now and the government's efforts to brighten up the life of the folks on the home front comes at a time when a jubilant people is anxious to celebrate.

The new concerts are under the direction of the All-Union radio committee. The next weekend Muscovites will view the operetta "Silva" on Saturday and will listen to symphony music Sunday.

CAB DRIVERS IN COLUMBUS STRIKE

COLUMBUS, April 13.—Taxicab service in Ohio's capital was at a standstill today as drivers struck in what a spokesman described as a protest against a new city ordinance regulating charges for "double loading" of passengers.

Nearly 200 cabs were affected, leaving workers without their customary transportation to outlying plants engaged in war production. Cab company officials estimated 300 union members in three firms and a number of independent drivers joined the walkout last night.

Dana Edge, secretary-treasurer of taxicab local No. 260, Columbus Federation of Labor, urged the men to return to work and negotiate their differences. "This strike isn't only against the city," Edge said, "it's against the United States because you haul workers to war plants."

Lisbon Draftees Entrain

Deferments of Younger Men Are Up to State

COLUMBUS, April 13.—Ohio employers must contact state Selective Service headquarters in seeking deferments for essentially employed 18-to-25-year-olds, Lt. Col. Carl G. Wahl, manpower officer, said today.

Local boards no longer have authority to grant occupational deferments to any registrant under 26, Wahl said. The recent ruling which ordered immediate induction of all physically fit younger men unless engaged in essential work, eliminated the local boards' jurisdiction, he explained.

Wahl expressed belief that only a very few Ohioans in the low-age bracket would meet requirements of the essentially employed classification.

ROOFTOP AIRPORTS FOR MAIL SERVICE

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A plan to put airports on the roofs of post-offices throughout the country may be tried in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana after the war.

Officials of the Public Buildings administration said the three mid-western states were being eyed as initial locations for this swift mail service. A helicopter mail service between Philadelphia's 30th Street office and the Camden, N. J., central air port was inaugurated and abandoned before the war began.

W. E. Reynolds, PBA commissioner, disclosed the naval program at hearings before the house public buildings committee which is studying the problem of post-war employment.

Without giving details, Reynolds said preliminary blueprints showed airports on the roofs of land adjacent to all new postoffices in cities of over 25,000 population. Later it would be possible to convert the tops of present postoffices into landing fields for helicopters or similar craft.

Seattle Official Predicts Bricker's G. O. P. Nomination

SEATTLE, April 13.—Nomination of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio for president on an early ballot at the Republican national convention was predicted today by Ralph R. Knapp of Seattle, former Republican speaker of the state house of representatives.

Knapp's forecast came after three days of vigorous campaigning by Bricker in Washington state, climaxed by an address last night in which he demanded the United States government "look out for its own interests because other nations are looking out for theirs."

Bricker declared the United States should demand that other nations co-operate with us. "It is high time we realized we can win the respect of the world not by the lavish expenditure of our taxpayers' dollars, but only by keeping our promises and by promising only that which we can fulfill," he said.

He lashed out at the present national administration, saying it had established "a great propaganda bureau at the cost of $100,000,000 a year to taxpayers to present only the best side of every development in Washington and every development in international affairs."

Bricker said he was for post-war co-operation but not "for an international police force which would have the power to order around our army and our navy over the combined judgment of the American people."

He referred to expenditures of American money in South America, declaring the government "apparently has embarked on a course of buying good will with dollars."

He said the state of Ohio recently was denied a priority by the War Production board on materials with which to build a hospital.

"You can imagine the feelings of the people of our state when we learned the government had built 36 hospitals in South America with money provided by American taxpayers. Yes, we are helping other people, but we are helping other people first."

Bricker left here for Oregon. He will spend Saturday in San Francisco and Monday and Tuesday in Los Angeles. He is due back in Columbus, April 21.

Drug Mistake Is Fatal To Cleveland Soldier

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., April 13.—The death of Percy Jones General hospital of a 31-year-old Cleveland veteran of fighting in the Southwest Pacific was the result of a lethal dose of drug accidentally administered, Brig-Gen. Joseph E. Bastion, hospital commander, said today.

A special board of officers has been named to investigate "to determine the person or persons responsible," Gen. Bastion said.

The victim of what hospital authorities termed an "unfortunate mishap" was Sgt. James P. Mottershaw. He died March 31 after undergoing an operation.

Renews Fight to Name U. S. Battleship for Ohio

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins (R.) of Ironton, O., yesterday renewed his fight to have a battleship in the U. S. fleet and a street in the nation's capital named for his native state.

The congressman asked the Navy and District of Columbia officials to give Ohio "proper recognition."

"Believe it or not, there is no ship in the great American Navy named for the great state of Ohio," Jenkins wrote Navy Secretary Knox.

Jenkins said he would ask other congressmen, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, state departments and patriotic organizations to help in the movement.

Courage and Blood Plasma Saved Struthers Marine's Life After Japs Left Him For Dead

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC (Delayed)—A fellow Marine gave Corp. Emil Elias of 38 Center st., Struthers, O., up for dead. So did the Japs, even though they searched him 11 times during the night after they had thrown a grenade into a charge of dynamite and killed the other two occupants of his foxhole on Engebi Island in the Marshalls.

But Elias is alive today. He has been evacuated and is recovering at another base. Fellow members of the 22d Marines still are amazed at his survival.

Elias was in a foxhole with Privates First Class Robert J. Mekula of North Braddock, Pa., and John R. Gonda of Emerson, Pa., the first night of the Marine invasion of that island in Eniwetok atoll. They had some hand grenades and a charge of TNT tied together in a package near them for use against the Japs.

About 9:30 in the evening some of the enemy tried to infiltrate. One of them heaved a grenade which set off dynamite and grenades. Gonda was killed in the explosion and Elias and Mekula were wounded severely.

Marine Pfc. Charles J. Battali of Milford, N. J., ran up to help them. He thought Elias was dead and left him, but carried Mekula back for first aid. The latter died soon afterward.

Elias said he was conscious each time the Japs searched him. He could hear them jabbering and said one or more Japs gave him a going-over 11 times during the night, apparently looking for food and weapons. The explosion blew him clear of the hole, but he crawled back in and waited almost nine hours.

Pfc. Albert W. Meyers of Chicago and Sgt. Charles E. Sams of Montezuma, Iowa, stopped him the next morning. They carried him to a first-aid station. Elias was administered four units of blood plasma.

When his friends saw him next on the hospital ship, Elias had not lost the ability to grin. When Sgt. David Guido of Altoona, Pa., visited him his greeting was: "You can call me 'mister' from now on, sergeant. I guess I'm just a civilian again."

"There's one boy who really had the will to live," said Guido. "The blood plasma undoubtedly helped a lot. It's a wonderful thing, but he never could have lasted without it."

Import Jamaicans To Ohio To Work As Farm Laborers

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, April 13.—Approximately 1,000 natives of Jamaica, British crown colony in the West Indies, will be imported to relieve acute labor shortages on Ohio farms, Guy Dowdy, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture's agent of agricultural conservation, disclosed today.

Dowdy said his office had requested 1,000 Jamaicans for spring and summer labor on Ohio farms and that 825 already had been allocated to the state.

Four hundred are scheduled to arrive May 15, and an additional 400 by mid-June if Ohio farmers place orders for their employment.

The first contingent will be assigned to Lake county for cultivation of fruit and vegetable crops and grain and tobacco in parts of Darke and Miami counties, north of Dayton.

Dowdy said the first Jamaicans would be housed in barracks of a work camp just outside Painesville. Those allocated to Darke and Miami counties will be quartered in an armory at Covington, O.

In addition to the West Indies labor 5,000 prisoners of war have been requested of the Army by the department of agriculture for field work on Ohio farms. Dowdy reported. The War Manpower commission also has requested 5,000 prisoners for use in Ohio canneries.

Allocations of the 825 Jamaicans: Clark county, 100; Greene, 75; Champaign, 60; Logan, 60; DeWane, 25; Wood, 75; Paulding, 15; Henry, 15; Stark, 300; Lake, 100; Darke and Miami, 100.

The War Today By DeWitt MacKenzie

express approval of the action. America's Robert Murphy declared it "Augsurs well for the future" and said he thought it would lead to a more democratic and stable government.

While Britain apparently favors Emanuel's retirement, it's hard to believe she would welcome the abolition of the monarchy. Her policy has been to support European thrones as calculated to lend strength to the monarchical form of government to which she herself subscribes. However, she is of course wedded to democracy.

As things stand, the present Italian government will continue until the war is over. Then there will be a plebiscite to determine the form of government desired. If the nation returns to normal quickly after peace comes, it may be one of the first to register self-determination.

Thus Italy may give us an early gauge of the political trend on the continent of Europe. It's certain that the Italian Communists will try to carry the day, just as it's certain that Communism will play a big part in numerous other countries, notably in the Balkans just across the Adriatic from Italy.

The three officers were expected to contend through their witnesses that at least many deviations from inspection standards, charged by the prosecution, would affect neither the usability nor the safety of aircraft engines supplied the armed services. It was indicated, too, that they would argue that application of those standards to engine parts is a matter of personal judgment on which many inspectors may—and do—differ radically.

Accused are Lt. Col. Frank C. Greulich of Detroit, former chief inspection officer of the AAF Materiel command; Maj. Walter A. Ryan, Detroit, formerly central states inspection officer; and Maj. William Bruckmann, Cincinnati, former resident officer at the plant.

Myron B. Gordon, vice president of the engine firm, was to be their first of more than 30 witnesses. Many of the others, defense counsel indicated, will be high inspection officials already mentioned in prosecution testimony.

MacARTHUR

a firm believer in the people and if given the truth they can be depended upon to meet any national crises. The point is to bring before them the real facts.

"Out here we are doing what we can with what we have. I will be glad, however, where more substantial forces are placed at my disposition."

The latter apparently was a reference to a declaration by Miller that the people are convinced the "allocation of war supplies is not above critical examination" and an expression of hope that "some decisions soon will be sent more supplies to the Pacific area where they can be used against the Japs."

Publication of the letters came at a time when there were reports that some of MacArthur's supporters wanted to slow down his campaign because of the growth of a bandwagon movement toward Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Dewey Still Silent

The demonstrated ability of New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to attract convention delegates while maintaining his public position that he is not a candidate caused some worry among the leaders of campaigns being conducted for Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, Lieut. Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen and Gen. MacArthur.

Despite the strong showings made by MacArthur in the Illinois preferential primary and Stassen in Nebraska, there are signs of a division of opinion among their backers as to the advisability of continuing the race.

Some of those who were instrumental in putting MacArthur's name before the voters, despite the silence on political matters, are known to have reached the conclusion that Wendell L. Wilkie's withdrawal from the contest ended hopes for a deadlocked convention which would afford the best chance for the general's nomination.

While those now believe it might be better to swing to Dewey as the leading candidate, there appeared no likelihood that the MacArthur-for-President organization headed by Joe Savage of Chicago holds any idea of quitting, particularly in view of the general's popular vote showing in the Illinois primary Tuesday.

There are no signs of a cleavage in the Bricker camp but there have been reports that the Ohio governor, who is the only candidate openly campaigning for himself, might be satisfied with a vice presidential nomination.

Thus far, Bricker has not pledged or claimed delegates, although he doubtless will get the support of almost all, if not all, of Ohio's 50 delegates to be chosen May 9.

blasts at northern France carried the current air series into its sixth straight day.

Red Airmen Busy

Russian air forces also were throwing new weight into the Allied blows at the Balkans, the Moscow radio said, with Red army air force attacks on Constanta, the Rumanian port through which Germany may attempt to evacuate forces cut off in the Crimea.

RAF Mosquitos carried the new offensive on through last night by attacking Osnabruck, about 75 miles west of Hanover.

The night bombers struck after damaging raids by American Flying Fortresses and Liberators against aircraft factories at Wiener Neustadt, Bad Voslau and Fischamend Markin Austria yesterday. Twenty-eight German planes were downed in combat, and 11 U. S. bombers and two fighters were lost over Austria.

Mediterranean air force planes flew 2,250 sorties during the day, also hitting railways above Rome and striking into Yugoslavia.

Rules Prosecutors Entering Service May Retain Office

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 13.—Prosecuting attorneys may enter the armed service and still retain their elective offices, the State Supreme court ruled today in ordering the county officials of Adams county to pay the salary of Prosecutor Alfred Rodman Clinger.

Clinger, elected to the four-year term as prosecutor starting Jan. 1, 1941, enlisted in the Army Dec. 1, 1941. His assistant carried on the work during his absence.

County commissioners, contending that by reason of Clinger's absence in the armed service he had vacated the office, refused to appropriate money for his salary.

In issuing an order to pay Clinger's salary during his absence, the court held such absence in the armed service did not constitute abandonment of the office.

Rule In Pension Case
The Division of Aid for the Aged cannot levy against a wife's property for pension paid her husband, the court held in affirming Jackson county court decisions.

Archibald A. Arnold of Wellston received $1,559 in old age benefits from 1935 to 1941. His wife, Allie, who was not eligible for aid, owned their residence and after her death the division sought to levy against the property to recover payments to her husband.

The court held that where a husband is recipient of an old age pension but the wife is not, the amount paid the husband can not be recovered from the wife's estate in the absence of any agreement on her part to be bound. No such agreement existed.

Harrison and Washington county treasurers permitted the Muskingum county conservancy district to take judgment against them for small assessments against various subdivisions in actions brought in the Supreme court by the conservancy district to collect the delinquent amounts.

A similar action against the Coshocton county treasurer was dismissed on application of the conservancy district after the assessments had been paid.

Unemployed Benefits To Area Workers Is Shown

There was an average of 21 unemployed persons per week who received compensation payments here during the month, with benefits being paid for 99 weeks of unemployment.

Unemployment compensation payments for the entire state amounted to $162,971 during March. Administrator Charles H. Jones announced, a two per cent increase over February.

25 Teams Are Entered In Little City Basketball Tournament

The Masonic Ladies' league ended its schedule last night but no changes in standings resulted from the final night's action.

The Gems, league leaders for a long time, finished five games in front of the Bowling Center five. In third place was the Salem News and the Eagles finished fourth.

A see-saw battle for Pastime league leadership is in progress on the Bowling Center alleys. The two leading teams clashed last night and by winning the last of the series the Eagles moved back into first place ahead of the Bowling Center team.

8 GAMES OPEN PLAY TONIGHT

15 Towns Are Represented In Record Entry; Five Salem Teams Enter

With entries now numbering 25, three more than ever before, officials are preparing for the opening of the 1944 Little City basketball tournament at the Memorial building tonight, when eight games will be played, involving four of Salem's five participating squads.

Tourney plans call for eight games on tonight's docket, eight Friday night, and 10 Saturday. On Saturday games will start at 12:15 p. m. and will run through 5:30, when a rest period will be allowed the remaining squads until the finals at 9 and 10.

Joe Kelley, tournament manager, released the complete list of entries today, with the expectation that one or two more teams might file officially before the deadline.

The first contest of the tourney will get under way at 5:45 today between the Salem Wranglers and an East Liverpool aggregation. At 1:30 the Recreation meets Alliance, to be followed at 7:15 by the Campbell Isals and the Beaver Falls Beavers. At 8 p. m. the strong Canton O'Hara squad meets the Johnstown Howland A. C. and at 8:45 Canton Yale clothes tackles New Castle's Phantoms.

The last three contests involve the Mounds Service from Youngstown and a squad from the Canton Urban league at 9:30, Youngstown's Brewster versus Salem's Celtics at 10:15, and the final at 11 between Salem's Sheens and Canton's 20th Century aggregation.

AMATEUR PROS—Forfeit.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Although there's nothing in the wording of the new draft ruling regarding men over 26 that even hints at the status of baseball players, some baseball men who have their ears tuned to Washington wavelengths insist it means their athletes won't be called. "The Army doesn't want 'em and they won't try to force ball players into war jobs," said one. "It's like the limited service men. They told us down there. There's only one place for those fellows and that's right on your ball clubs."

An Oklahoma who figures anonymity is the better part of valor, forwards the report that medical discharges in the Army these days are accompanied by Tulsa U. football posters. But if Coach Henry Frank really has the Army docs organized that much, it probably was to keep the Giants from signing 'em all as baseball players.

KIDLL PLAY BASEBALL, TOO

Latest report on the growth of "kid" baseball comes from Milwaukee, where the "stars of yesterday" program, begun in 1936, operated with 85 teams last year.

Teams are named for former Brewer stars, hence the tag. A notable feature of the project is a baseball school, conducted by former pro players, which has drawn more than 6,500 kids to "Professor" Jack Kloza's lectures and nearly 11,000 at the outdoor classes.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Jimmy Johnston has accepted an offer for his re-treated heavy-weight, Tony Shucro, to fight Turky Thompson in Hollywood, Calif., late in May, but in making the bid Promoter Joe Lynch insisted that Jimmy must accompany Shucro or the fight was off.

Who's the attraction, anyway? Paul Richards, Detroit Tigers' catcher, wrote sports for the Waxahatchie, Tex., "Light" last winter. Big Bill Freelove, owner of the Los Angeles Mustangs, is trying to organize an eight-club pro football league on the west coast to start operations next fall.

New York Teams, Brooklyn, Philly Play Charity Games

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 13.—It's all for sweet charity today as New York's Yankees and Giants meet at the Polo grounds, and the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies clash at Ebbets' field.

The Red Cross gets all the gate, and it's liable to add up to a fat figure. Regular prices are being charged, 35,000 are expected to see the Yank-Giant tilt, and no one knows how many will be on hand to see the Bums and the Bluejays.

The Polo grounds spectacle will have Ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker as master of ceremonies, Babe Ruth swinging his home run bat at some practice pitches, Al Schacht doing his funny stuff and music by a High school band and a Coast Guard drum and bugle corps.

Over in Brooklyn the program calls for a parade, with all branches of the service represented, a bit of warbling by John Boles and Frank Sinatra, a bevy of folies gals decorating the rotunda, and Jack Dempsey selling bleacher tickets.

Paul Brown Leaves Monday For Navy

COLUMBUS, April 13.—Paul E. Brown, Ohio State university's head football coach, has been commissioned a lieutenant (jg) in the Navy and ordered to report to Great Lakes next Monday, he disclosed today.

Brown was sworn in at the Navy recruiting office here yesterday. He is 35 years old, married, and has three sons.

Choice of a successor to him at Ohio State remains with Brown, who will be "coach in absentia." He is expected to announce shortly who of his staff will carry on during his absence.

Brown said he was not aware what his duties in the Navy would be. Lt. Paul "Tony" Hinkle recently was transferred from football and basketball coach to athletic director at Great Lakes, leaving the Bluejacket varsity without a mentor.

Jim Jeffries Is 69

BURBANK, Calif., April 13.—Big Jim Jeffries, one of the last in the old line of heavyweight champions, observes his 69th birthday in special festivities in his Burbank boxing arena tonight. Stage and screen stars and boxing champions of the past and present will help Jim celebrate.

Alan Ford, Yale's crack swimmer, won the first race in which he competed. It was at his home in Balboa, Canal Zone, when he was six years old. The prize was a small bar of chocolate.

AAA
NEWS

Clifford F. Shaw, chairman of the Columbiana County Agricultural Conservation association, announces that farmers' applications for non-highway gasoline have now been approved by the county committee and have been forwarded to the Office of Price Administration.

The O. P. A. is to send the coupons for this gasoline out to the farmers. However, complaints from the farmers have been coming in to the A. A. A. office stating that they have not received their coupons and that their gasoline supply is exhausted.

The committee has investigated and finds that the ration boards have been sending out the coupons to the farmers in Columbiana county, but at this date their supplies of "R" coupons have been used and additional supplies not yet received.

As soon as the boards receive their supplies, all non-highway gasoline coupons will be mailed at once. This should be only a matter of a few days.

The haematozyon campechiana, a tree that supplies dye-wood, grows most abundantly in southern Mexico.

ARE YOUR TIRES SMOOTH?

When the non-skid pattern on your tires disappears and you're riding on a smooth surface—it's time to check with our recapping experts! Not all tires can be successfully recapped—if the side-walls are bruised or if the carcass is damaged by improper inflation the tire may not be worth recapping! But our mechanics can tell you if your tires are in line for more mileage—if you are giving them the proper care—and they can do an expert job of recapping! Truck and pleasure car tires expertly recapped.
